

PRIVACY

The basic Data Protection Regulation (DSGVO; English: General Data Protection Regulation, GDPR; French: Règlement général sur la protection des données, RGPD) is a regulation of the European Union which establishes the rules on the processing of personal data by Private companies and public bodies are standardized across the EU. The aim is to ensure the protection of personal data within the European Union and also to ensure the free movement of data within the European internal market.

The regulation replaces the Directive 95/46/EC, which originated in 1995, on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data. Together with the so-called JHA Directive on data protection in the field of police and justice [1], the DSGVO has been the common data protection framework in the European Union since 25 May 2018.
